The practice followed in the Bombay Office is that if an Official or Servant is reported by the Plague authorities to have been taken to the Plague Camp for observation, his absence from the Office for the period of 10 days is treated as a special leave on Full pay, any excess period in continuation thereof being treated as privilege leave if he is entitled to it or otherwise as casual leave under articles 172 & 173 of the Bo. S. Regns.

Sir, With reference to your docket No. 8082/P&A806 dated 15th December 1900 requesting my opinion as to how the absence of officials or public servants who are taken to camp or segregated under Plague rules is to be treated &, I have the honour to state that I have been treating the absence of officials and servants of my office under the circumstances stated above as casual or privilege leave to which they may at the time be eligible for, and if neither of these kinds of leave was admissible as leave under the ordinary rules.

Reference is invited to explanation to Note I under clause iii of art: 366 of the British C.S.Regulations which is in all fours with the procedure adopted by me in the matter and which may be prescribed for general observance in Mysore.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

"Explanation" to Note 1 under clause (iii) of Article 366 of the Civil Service Regulations.

Explanation. — This note is not to be read as precluding the treatment as casual leave, of absence from duty following on leave granted under the rules, so long as such absence is due to reasons involving no evasion of the rules in regard to the matters above specified, as for instance when it is necessitated by detention in plague camps on the way to rejoin, or by orders not to attend office in consequence of the presence of infectious disease in the family or household of the person concerned.

When, however, absence from duty for reasons of the nature above indicated exceeds the period which may may reasonably be treated as casual leave under the discretion vested in the head of the office, the case should be dealt with as follows:—

(1) If the person concerned has further leave due to him carrying the same allowances as the leave already granted, he will be required to take an extension of leave to cover his further absence from duty.

(2.) If the further absence from duty cannot be covered in this way, the period, or such part of it as remains uncovered, will be treated as leave without allowances, unless the person concerned prefers to substitute leave of another description for that which he has previously taken.

Example.—

Example.— A, who has had two months privilege leave, is detained for a further period of one month in a plague camp. If he has a month or less privilege leave still due, this must be reckoned against the further period of detention. If he has no privilege leave due but has furlough to his credit, he has the option of converting the entire period of his absence from duty into furlough, or of taking leave without allowances for the extra month.
